

Peak preview

Peak foliage color is being reported from the Northeast Kingdom of Vermont, through extreme northern New Hampshire into northern Maine. Color also has peaked in the higher elevations of the Adirondack Mountains in northeastern New York.

Now is a great time to enjoy one of the most beautiful foliage drives, the Kancamagus Highway ("The Kanc") that runs between Lincoln and Conway, N.H., on Route 112 in White Mountain National Forest.

Foliage change to the south of us continues to progress very slowly, most likely due to the warm temperatures in that region during much of last month.

This information is provided by Marek D. Rzonca, The Foliage Network. For updates, visit www.foliagenetwork.com.

autumnleaves

A weekly update on the fall foliage season

